Three-Day Band Fete

1935

PROVO, April 20.—Taps, blown soft and clear by one cornet, and echoed by three other instruments stationed at various points in the Brigham Young university stadium Saturday night before an audience estimated at 16,000 persons, brought to a close the three-day Utah state band contest and music festival conducted here.

The impressive ceremony, against the spectacular background of a figure 30 feet tall, illuminated by fireworks and representing a trumpeter, fell on a hushed and awed audience.

The closing event of the festival was preceded by a parade of 71 bands and 4000 contestants in a colorful march from the business district of the city to the stadium.

Near the stadium, the 4000 contestants fell from the line of march and the bands continued into the playing field of the enclosure.

Join In Anthem

In military formation they circled the field and drew up into a massed organization facing the audience.

At this point the 45 senior high school bands played three selections—"The Star-Spangled Banner," the "National Emblem March," and "End of a Perfect Day." Twenty-six junior high school bands then played a selection.

Under the direction of Harold Bachman, the combined bands played the selection, "Festal Song." Governor Henry H. Blood, in a short speech, greeted the audience and commented on the purpose of the contests, the hospitality of Provo city to its adopted musical family and praised the leaders of the movement for their splendid work.

Dancing, Acrobatics

Included in the events at the stadium were several adagio dances, acrobatic feats and tap dancing by students of Brigham Young university. The tap dancing performance featured four principals (Continued on Page Ten) (Column One)

Massed Bands Wind Up Festival in Great Ceremony at Provo

000 Watch Impressive Ceremony That Concludes Record Three-Day Session; Contestants Depart for Homes

The final day of the contests and musical instructors held in the Hotel Roberts Saturday afternoon, started at 9 a. m. with class A bands competing in the L. D. S. tabernacle, mixed choruses, of class C and B groups, performing in the Provo high school auditorium and the college hall of the Brigham Young university, and band maneuvers at the stadium.

During the entire three-day pro-gram, Provo has been gripped in a carnival spirit. Bunting and flags were flying from all sections of the city. Music predominated from early morning until late evening. Perfect weather and efficient man-agement of the gigantic affair made Provo's first such contest an un-mistakable success.

Record For Safety

"With a population doubled, the city maintained a record standard in the safety of its visitors. Four minor traffic accidents were re-corded and only two students suf-fered injuries of any nature. On the opening day of the festi-val, more than fifty events in all types of music expression were ad-judged. Friday's program was de-voted to orchestras, glee group work, and the stirring band man-ners and drum major twirling leaders of festival have upheld the slogan, "Not to Win a Prize or to be an Opponent, But to Face Other on the Road to Excel-lence." In all the events, number-more than 400, during the three-annual festival.

Times of financial stress have been a blessing in disguise to American young men and women in making them use their own hands and brains "rather than depending on father," according to Dr. Charles E. Barker, physician and lecturer on health and social problems.

Dr. Barker, whose home is in Grand Rapids, Mich., arrived Saturday in Salt Lake City to fill a number of speaking engagements here Sunday, Monday and Tuesday under the auspices of the Rotary club.

He will discuss "The Road to Happiness" at services Sunday at 7:30 p. m. in the First Methodist church. On Monday he will address students of the East and South high schools, and Tuesday at 11:15 a. m.

"To stimulate an interest for students to be the judge of the events, and incidentally absorb a greater understanding of the purpose of the meets, I would suggest that schools offer their students small prizes for the best criticism on the performances of other schools."

Mr. Bachman, in speaking to the band directors, urged them to study their scores thoroughly before the students play them, so as to enable thorough teaching.

He stressed the mechanics of band orchestration and pleaded that directors would strive for rounded, clear notes, proper inflection of music tones and frequent tuning of instruments during practice and actual orchestration performances.

Later Saturday students were preparing to return to their homes. Special trains, numerous buses, motor caravans and other modes of transportation were awaiting the 8000 students and the estimated 10,000 spectators attracted to the festival.

Transportation committee members estimated that the majority of the contestants would leave for their homes Saturday night, with the remainder departing Sunday morning and afternoon.

The event was declared by Harold Bachman, nationally known band leader and critic and chief judge at the event, as the most outstanding event of its nature he has ever attended. Mary Lou Hendricks, right, drum major of the Wasatch county high school band, had never attempted to wield the baton until Thursday, but took over the post when Theon Barker, drum major, was declared ineligible. Judges said she did a splendid job. Norman Perry, left, was adjudged outstanding drum mapor in the baton twirling event Friday. He is drum major of the eBar River high school.

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP)—Secretary Dern of the war department said tonight he planned to observe the take-off from Stratoscamp, Bladick Hills, South Dakota, early in June of the stratosphere flight of the balloon Explorer II, to be sent into the upper atmosphere by the army air corps and the National Geographic society.

According to the inscription on the instrument, it was made for Antonio Regio, who presented it to Countess Isabella Dula. It vanished for several years, then was given to Charles Brewer, English painter, by an Italian count as part payment for a life-size portrait. Brewer brought it to the United States.

Sisters Visit Barber During Contest Lull

Three Members Of Family Take Part in Contest

Form Important Co
Santaquin Junior H
School Band

PROVO—Three daughters of Mrs. A. A. Borgeson of Santaquin, Clara, 7; Lavina, 8, and Marie, 9, are rated, despite their young age, as veteran musicians at the Utah band contest and musical festival in Provo.

Now an important cog in the Santaquin junior high school band, the sisters began their musical training when they attained 4 years of age.

As members of the band, Marie plays cornet, while Clara and Lavina play a clarinet. All of the sisters, however, are equally adept in playing the violin and piano.

In competition with senior high school students at the Price Mountain music contests in Provo last year, Marie was given a high rating by the judges.

Musical ability is characteristic of the Borgeson family. Two daughters, Nellie, 4, performs on the clarinet, and the baby, just 18 months old, displays exceptional musical talent.

Stars Will Join With Students in Music Festival

APR 1935

PHILADELPHIA, April 20 (AP)—Opera stars, symphony conductors, concert soloists and composers join with community choruses and high school singers next week in an American music festival at the National Federation of Music Clubs convention.

Delegates of 5000 groups representing half a million music lovers will come here Tuesday for a week of song. They will listen to famed artists, hear young musicians make bids for recognition and consider the state of music in the United States.

Many Soloists

On a long list of festival soloists are Giovanni Martinnelli and Kathryn Meisle of the Metropolitan Opera company; Nelson Eddy, American baritone; Albert Spalding, American violinist, and Jose Iturbi, pianist and conductor.

The Philadelphia orchestra, with Iturbi on Leopold Stokowski's dais, will share the festival program with such organizations as the Curtis quartet, Pittsburgh Madrigal singers, the Baltimore Music Club chorus, the Fargo-Moorehead Amphion choir of Fargo, N. D., and the old Harp Singers of Nashville, Tenn.

Young vocalists, pianists and violinists will compete for $100 awards and chances at professional careers with the Metropolitan Opera or the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Choral Ensembles

Thirty choral ensembles from 21 cities in 15 states will be heard in the cycle of song, which will end April 29 in a joint concert at the academy of music.

Among American composers expected to attend the convention, some of them to hear their own works, are Dr. Howard Hanson, Edgar Stillman Kelley, Gena Branscombe, T. Tertius Noble, A. Walter Kramer, Carlos Salzedo, John Powell, Ernest Hutcheson, Mrs. John B. Buchanan and Mrs. H. A. A. Beach.

Five auditoriums in the city will provide sounding boards for musicians, composers, critics, educators and leaders of the federation as they study the progress of native American music.

Capitol Hill Ward Will Continue Homecoming

Continuing a three-day homecoming and reunion for Capitol Hill L. D. S. ward, a special Easter service will be held by the Sunday school at 10 a. m. Alonzo A. Hinckley, member of the council of the twelve apostles, will speak at the 6:30 p. m. services.

The homecoming began Friday night with a banquet and program. A children's party was held Saturday afternoon and a dance Saturday night.

Radio broadcasts in Quebec are made in two languages—French and English.

Conflict in Law Hinders Sentence

Because of an apparent conflict in the statutes on whether depriving an owner of possession of his automobile is a felony or a misdemeanor, Judge Roger I. McDonough of Third district court Saturday declined to sentence Stanley Dalton, 22, of 1859 Lake street, recently convicted of depriving an owner of possession of his automobile.

Parnell Black, assistant Third district attorney, moved for dismissal of the complaint, with the announcement that a drunken driving complaint probably will be issued against Dalton.

Dalton was convicted of having deprived Roy Cahoon, 145 Coatsville avenue, of his automobile February 24.

Inability of Judge McDonough to sentence Dalton was caused by the presence of two statutes, both identical as to definition of the crime of depriving an owner of possession of his automobile. One of the statutes, however, makes the crime a felony, and the other makes it a misdemeanor.

The law of the compiled statutes making the crime a felony is believed to be superseded by the section in the 1933 session laws, which makes the crime a misdemeanor.

To Deliver Sermon

Dr. E. E. Erickson, professor of philosophy at the University of Utah, will deliver the Easter sermon Sunday at 6:30 p. m. in the Twentieth L. D. S. ward chapel, Second avenue and G street.
